

THANKS TO WESTERN BIRDS' REVIEWERS AND ASSOCIATE EDITORS

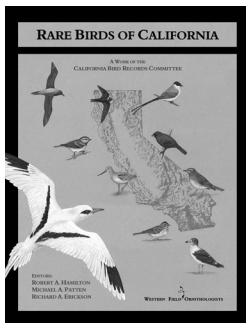

Peer review is a critical step in the publication of a scientific journal. I thank the following people for their generosity in taking the time to provide this essential service sustaining the scientific quality of Western Birds for volume 40: Daniel A. Dunn, Kirsten Dybala, Richard A. Erickson, Mike Erwin, Ted Floyd, Scott Gardner, Kimball L. Garrett, Geoff Geupel, Gary Graves, Paul Hendricks, Osvel Hinojosa-Huerta, Steve N. G. Howell, John E. Hunter, Alvaro Jaramillo, Matthew J. Johnson, Kathy Keane, Dave Krueper, Len Lindstrand III, Steve Matsuoka, Rachel McCaffrey, Carol L. McIntyre, Charles Preston, Katy Purcell, Peter Pyle, C. J. Ralph, Martin Raphael, J. Van Remsen, Leslie Robb, Michael M. Rogers, Gary Rosenberg, Tom Ryan, Mark Seamans, Nathaniel Seavy, Larry Semo, Rodney Siegel, Douglas Tempel, Theodore G. Many thanks too to our associate editors, Doug Faulkner, Thomas Gardali, Daniel D. Gibson, Robert E. Gill, Ron LeValley, Tim Manolis, Kathy Molina, and Dan Reinking, plus featured-photo editor Joseph Morlan, who serve also as reviewers themselves. Western Birds is not possible without their dedication. Special thanks to Tim Manolis, who has decided to take a "sabbatical" from Western Birds after serving as an associate editor since 1984 and as a member of Western Birds' founding editorial board in 1974, not to mention as Western Field Ornithologists' president from 1986 to 1989! There are few people whose service to Western Field Ornithologists is as great as Tim's. We welcome Gjon C. Hazard (U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Carlsbad, California) as a new associate editor. I'm grateful to Dan Gibson for taking on the compilation of this volume's index. The help of all these accomplished ornithologists as associate editors is vital to the quality of Western Birds.
